Vice President of Operations

Carolyn Nash has been a cornerstone of the New York State Broadcasters Association since January 2010, rising from Administrative Assistant to Vice President of Operations. In her current role, she oversees the operational backbone of the association, planning and managing NYSBA's signature events, including the Excellence in Broadcasting Awards luncheons, Congressional Visit events, and the annual Board and Regional Meetings, while directing office management, accounts payable, human resources and payroll, the retirement plan, and the Alternative Broadcast Inspection Program (ABIP).

Carolyn brought more than a decade of association and events experience to NYSBA. She previously served as Event Manager for the New York State Telecommunications Association, and before that spent several years in the healthcare field, where she developed the organizational discipline and attention to detail that defines her work today.

A graduate of Hudson Valley Community College, Carolyn is originally from Lansingburgh, New York, and has spent her career serving organizations across the Capital Region.
